What is Autism?

Autism is a disability of neurological development that can hamper normal brain development, it affects communication, interacting socially and behaviour as well. It is commonly known as a spectrum disorder because its effects can be seen in multiple combinations that can affect children in many ways. It is completely dependent upon the severity of the medical condition in children. Some of the children might not be able to do anything without help, while others might be able to do some actions with less help. It depends upon the severity of Autism.

SYMPTOMS OF AUTISM

Symptoms of Autism

There are some of the most common symptoms of Autism that can be noticed in the children. But the parents have to be aware of all these conditions so that they should be able to identify the symptoms and thus they should be able to make the decision accordingly. If the parents would be aware of the symptoms, it would be easy for them to understand this problem and would not create any problem for them unnecessarily. So be sympathetic towards these kids and keep your mind open so that you can see when your kid needs to see a doctor.

- If the kid is repeating the phrase that they hear constantly, it might be a symptom of autism. And thus it is a sign that your kid needs to see a doctor immediately.
- If the kid is repeating the actions again and again, without stopping then it also means that you need to see a doctor.
- If the kid is not willing to learn the language of communication or is not willing to communicate through words, then it might be a big sign of autism and thus it should be brought to the notice of the doctor on the urgent basis.
